For this project, I am targeting people who have never had a pet but want to adopt one. In this project, you can learn about the daily necessities and living environment for puppies, kittens and rabbits. First of all, to adopt a pet, you must need time and money because their necessities are indispensable, but after introducing them, you can seriously consider whether you can take them home and be your life partner.

I would suggest that this project be used in the library. First, I think there are people of different ages in the library, who can quickly spread their understanding of pets before or after adoption. Second, many people think that pets should eat the same things and use the same things as humans. In fact, they have the supplies they need. Although they are part of our family, somehow they are not. Humans, we should pamper them in the right way. Finally, when you know what kind of pets you need, let them be your life companions correctly.

In this project, I use different web pages to show different kinds of pets, choose the kind you like or want to adopt, and make sure you understand their needs correctly. However choosing and considering whether it is appropriate. At the same time, I also hope that you can take them home because there are many pets waiting for us to give them a new home.
